Titanium Damascus (Timascus) is also known as Mokuti or TiMoku. It is made of different grades of titanium or titanium alloys. Generally, titanium Damascus /Timascus/Mokuti is processed by multiple materials (pure titanium or titanium alloy), by forging fusion (physical titanium or titanium alloy) fusion, block, bar and slab through twisting, extrusion, straightening, cutting, polishing and other processes. The billet is heated or anodized, resulting in brilliant colors (red, yellow, blue, gold, orange, pink affected by temperature) and beautiful patterns. Since only the general direction and number of layers of the pattern can be controlled in the process of processing, each piece of decorative art is unique.
